POSTOFFICE AT WOOSUNG ENTERED

SAFE BLOWN BUT INNER DOOR
WAS NOT DAMAGED—USE
BLOODHOUNDS.

ACT DONE SUNDAY NIGHT

Robbers Use Section Tools to Gain
Entrance Through Rear Window.

The safe at the Woosung postoffice, which is located in the J. L. White's general store, was blown some time Sunday night by would-be robbers, but the failure of the first charge of explosive to blow open the inner door of the strong box prevented the robbers getting any of Uncle Sam's property, and as far as is known nothing was stolen from the store.

The attempted robbery was discovered by Postmaster White when he opened the store this morning. All of the overalls, coats, blankets, etc., which he had in stock in the store were piled around the safe, the burglars utilizing them to muffle the sound of the explosion when the safe door was forced, and immediately Mr. White started an investigation after summoning neighbors to aid in the work.

Used Section Tools.

It was learned that the burglars had broken into the Illinois Central section house there and by means of heavy bars they forced a rear window of the store, thereby gaining entrance. That the would-be burglars' sole object was the rifling of the government safe was indicated by the fact that nothing about the store was taken, as far as can be ascertained.

It is thought that the robbers were frightened away after the first explosion, which badly wrecked the big door of the safe, for the inner door shows no signs of any attempt to force it.

After Bloodhounds.

After finishing his investigation Postmaster White communicated with the Dixon authorities in an effort to secure bloodhounds in an effort to trail the robbers, but it is feared by the authorities that the robbers made their escape on some freight train during the night and that efforts to trail them will prove fruitless.

BAILEY PLANS FOR WEEK OF PRAYER

CELEBRATION.

In compliance with a custom which will be observed by every association in the world, the local Y. M. C. A. will observe the Association Week of Prayer Nov. 9 to 16 inclusive, and all who are interested in Y. M. C. A. work are asked to take part in the celebration.

The week of prayer will start with a big "Ebenezer" meeting on Sunday, Nov. 9, which will be conducted by Secretary E. T. Bailey, and will conclude on the following Sabbath with a big mass meeting for men and women, for which some out of town speaker will be secured.

The committee voted to have the Men's meeting held every other Sunday. Local speakers will speak one Sunday and out of town speakers the other Sunday. The Boys' club will meet on alternating Sundays, and on the same Sunday the Men's chorus will meet. The boys will hold their meetings in the gym.

The committee also gives notice that strong work will be done along the religious line this winter.

WANDERER TAKEN BY SHERIFF REID

ALEXANDER ANDREWS OF CHICAGO FUND IN BAD PHYSICAL CONDITION.

Alexander Andrews of Chicago, a mason who has been working in the southern part of the state, was apprehended by Sheriff Reid Saturday afternoon near the Leake farm, where he had stood against a fence all day, his continued presence there arousing the suspicion of the neighbors, with the result that the officers were notified.

When taken into custody the soles of the man's shoes were worn completely off and his feet were badly blistered, indicating that he had walked a great distance. The officers have communicated with relatives of the man and some of them are expected in Dixon this evening to take him to Chicago. He was last heard of as working in Clinton, Ill., and it is believed he walked the entire distance from that place to the Leake farm. Andrews' condition is such that he can answer no questions, and he has no idea how far he has walked.

DIXON UNION TEAM LOSES TO ROCHELLE

WAS A SPIRITED CONTEST AND DIXON LADS OUTCLASSED THEIR RIVALS.

Although they outplayed the Rochelle high school team and kept the ball in Rochelle territory nearly three-fourths of the game, the Dixon high school football team was defeated in Saturday's game in that city by a score of 7 to 6. Despite a muddy field the Dixon boys outclassed their rivals in every point of the game, and twice during the contest had the ball over the Rochelle line, but the referee refused to blow his whistle, and accordingly despite the protests of the Dixon boys refused to allow the score.

EDWARD BENJAMIN DIED THIS MORNING

WAS A RESIDENT OF DIXON FOR 64 YEARS—HIGHLY RESPECTED.

FUNERAL HELD WEDNESDAY P. M.

His Death Brings Sorrow to the Hearts of His Many Friends.

Edward Cornell Benjamin, who for 64 years has watched the growth and prosperity of Dixon, passed away at his home, 304 Peoria avenue, at 8:10 o'clock this morning, after a long illness, during which he bore his suffering and incapacity with remarkable patience and fortitude. The funeral services will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. F. D. Stone, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. Interment will be at Oakwood cemetery. Friends are asked to omit flowers.

Obituary.

Mr. Benjamin was a native of Dixon and as such his personal interest in the community was always evident. He was born July 1, 1849, on the site of Eli Rosenthal's cigar store on First street, which property he owned. During his boyhood he met with an unfortunate injury, which left him lame, and because of his infirmity his activity was limited. However, he became a fine music instructor, and a frugal, careful citizen. He was married June 26, 1902 to Miss Lillian Beach, who survives him. One sister, Mrs. E. A. Merriam, and a half-sister, Mrs. Frances Porter Howell, both of Council Bluffs, Ia., also survive to mourn his passing. Other sorrowing relatives are Charles Soule of Chicago, Mrs. Fannie Earnsey and Mrs. Frank Judd of Rockford.

Mr. Benjamin's death brings sorrow to the hearts of many friends, who will tender their sincerest condolence to the bereaved ones.

Pallbearers.

The following gentlemen have been selected as pallbearers:
E. W. Smith, C. A. Todd, S. N. Watson, C. A. Dement, R. R. Phillips and Wm. Rink Jr.

I. O. O. F. Meeting.

CHINESE LAUNDRY.

Dixon is to have a Chinese laundry within a few days. After several attempts to secure a suitable room here for the establishment of such an institution, Charles Hong of Chicago has rented the vacant room in the Ryan building on Hennepin avenue, which was formerly occupied by Chiverton's furniture store, and as soon as the necessary equipment can be secured he will open a regular Chinese laundry therein.

WILL CONTINUE MEETINGS THIS WEEK

REV. FRANK MILLER GAVE HISTORY OF HIS LIFE
SUNDAY.

Yesterday was a great day at the West Side Congregational church. More than a score publicly confessed Christ. Large congregations filled the church all day. There was an unanimous desire that Evangelist Miller should continue the meetings another week.

Story of James Boys.

Evangelist Miller's parents moved from Newark, N. Y., to Tipton, Mo., just after the war when Missouri was in terrible times and the James boys and their gang were beginning their desperate work, and they shot Mr. Miller's father in his own doorway for $275, which they did not get. They simply intended to rob him, but he resisted and they shot him. He lies in the Tipton cemetery, and his orphaned boy went out into the world at nine to battle alone. He will tell the story tonight at 7:30 sharp, at the Congregational church. There will be a silver offering taken this evening.

Services All Week.

Tomorrow night Mr. Miller will speak on "The Crucifixion" and give a chain of scripture from Genesis to Revelation on the "Scarlet Thread of the Redemption" and on Wednesday he will speak on "The Great White Throne."

Y. ENTERTAINMENT IS GIVEN TONIGHT

FIRST NUMBER OF COURSE HELD
THIS EVENING AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

The first number of the Y. M. C. A. entertainment course will be given this evening at 8:15, at the First Baptist church and the indications are that the church auditorium will be filled to capacity as the seat sale has been very large. The entertainment is to be given by the Fisher-Schipp Concert company, which is said to be one of the best of its kind on the lecture platform. The four members of the company are talented in their various lines, their program consisting of readings, solos and violin and viola selections.

MANY RESPOND TO INVITATIONS

TO THE MEN'S CLUB BANQUET
THURSDAY EVE AT
Y. M. C. A.

The receipt of responses to invitations for the first meeting and banquet of the Men's club of the Y. M. C. A., which will meet at the association building Thursday evening at 6:30 is proof that the affair will be largely attended, the action of the board of directors making the banquets free to club members having greatly stimulated the interest. All who intend being present, however, must submit their acceptances to the general secretary before Wednesday noon in order that seat reservations may be made for them.

The address at this banquet is to be delivered by Edmund M. Allen, warden of the Joliet penitentiary, and his subject will be on prison reforms, a subject in which he is well versed, for Mr. Allen's improvement of conditions at the Joliet institution has drawn the attention of the entire state to his work. Secretary Bailey has arranged to throw the gallery at the association open to the public after the banquet in order that all who so desire may have an opportunity of hearing Mr. Allen.

Samuel Edsall, bishop of Minnesota, returned to his home in Minneapolis today.

ENGINEER HARVEY SUBMITS REPORT

OF BRIDGE INSPECTION TO CITY COUNCIL THIS MORNING.

COUNCIL PROVIDES FOR PAVING

Bills for October Are Allowed—
Chandler Not to Resign.

There is nothing seriously wrong with the Galena avenue bridge over Rock river, according to Engineer John P. Harvey's report of inspection as submitted to the city council by Commissioner VanBibber this morning, but the bridge engineer suggests that the steel rods and diagonals be uniformly tightened.

Mr. Harvey reports that some of the rods he found too tight, and therefore carrying too much strain, while others were loose and carrying no strain at all. He submitted an estimate of the cost of such an improvement, and accordingly Commissioner VanBibber was instructed to ascertain the cost of the repairs, of which the S. D. & E. has agreed to pay one-half, according to the terms of their franchise.

North Galena Avenue Paving.

Local improvements were given a further impetus this morning when the council passed local improvement ordinance No. 156, providing for brick pavement on North Galena avenue from Fellows street to the Illinois Central tracks, the estimated cost of the improvement being $13,869.36. The council and local board also voted to advertise the sewer jobs provided under ordinances Nos. 143, 146, 149, 150, 151, 152 and 155. The bids for these contracts will be opened Monday afternoon, Nov. 17, at 2 o'clock.

Bills Allowed.

The bills for the month of October, totaling $2,886.72, were allowed and ordered paid, and the resignation of Miss Katherine McGrath from the office of city stenographer and deputy city clerk was accepted. The reported resignation of City Treasurer C. E. Chandler because of his ill health did not materialize and Mr. Chandler authorized the statement that as long as his health remains as good as it is, will continue in the office.

HINMAN INDUCTED AS PRESIDENT OF MARIETTA VARSITY

FORMER CHICAGO PUBLISHER FIRST BUSINESS MAN TO HEAD COLLEGE

MANY EDUCATORS ATTEND

Course to Prepare Graduates to Uphold U. S. Constitution Against Attacks Is Planned

Marietta, Ohio, Oct. 18. — Ideal conditions surrounded the inauguration of George Wheeler Hinman, former publisher of the Chicago Inter Ocean, as president of Marietta college, and the ceremonies were concluded tonight with a public reception, during which several thousand Mariettans met the new president and his wife.

The inauguration proper was held at 3 o'clock in the First Congregational church, an institution that has been closely identified with the life of the college since its founding, nearly a century ago. A street pageant was held, in which several hundred alumni, students, friends of the college and distinguished guests representing other educational institutions of the country were in line.

President Hinman's address follows:

Warnings Go Unheeded

"Though for a long time," said Marmontel, regarding the violent change in government which he lived through in France—"Though for a long time the situation of public affairs and the fermentation of men's minds through all ranks of the state appeared to threaten the approach of some great crisis, it is nevertheless true that it (the change of government) happened through the imprudence of those who obstinately persisted in thinking it impossible."

"There are no clear oracles in more instructive," says Lecky, "and there are few which are more humiliating, than those which record the judgments of great thinkers and politicians on the verge of the changes that have most profoundly affected the destiny of mankind."

"There are no clear oracles in the temple of nations. There is no sure sign by which nations are warned. The peril is silent, as a thief in the night. We sleep; we wake; and the silver cord has been loosed and the golden bowl broken."

"What do such lessons of history mean to us here today? Let us see."

"A vice president of the United States has said that American colleges send forth every year 25,000 young men to the battle of modern life, armed with the weapons of the Crusaders."

"As it stands, this statement will not do."

College Education Real

"College education has been, and is, real education—education of the kind to afford a wide view of human knowledge; of man as he is and has been; of man, therefore, as he may be or should be; of man in his relations to the earth he treads, the air he breathes, the human souls that he associates with."

"College education has been so effective in its work that it has come to be a belief or a tradition, that, other things being equal, the college graduate, wherever placed, can judge better, choose better, act more wisely, advance more rapidly and, in general, give a more satisfactory account of himself in life's war or life's peace than the man without a college education."

"And yet the flippant political criticism that I have quoted has in it a kernel of truth. That is a peculiarity of flippant political critics. There must always be a half truth to carry along the half falsehood. And this particular half truth is an important one. It refuses to down. It stands at the door and knocks. It is not heeded, it still stands and still knocks—again and again. It will not be denied. It must be answered."

"Education is a part of national life—in a republic it is a great part of national life. Whether public or private, secular or sectarian, it grows with the growth and shifts with the changes of the nation. It can no more escape this, than can laws, customs, manners or morals."

Faces New Emergencies

"Thus it comes that sometimes education is called upon to face new duties, to meet new emergencies, in which not only its hopes, aspirations, and possessions, but even its very life, stand at stake.

"This, I believe, is the point we are approaching today—the point which we have almost reached today and the point which we have been reaching toward for the last twenty years. Does education face any new situation of the kind that brings new duties? If so, what is the occasion and what is the duty?"

"Who will maintain that the American people are what they were twenty-five years ago?"

"Some, but not many."

"Who will contend that their national aims and ambitions, sentiments, loyalties and emotions, their ideals of government, their views of present affairs, their hopes of the future and their general habits of mind and their attitude to the laws and institutions of the country proceed along the same lines and within the same limits as in the '80s?"

"Few—very few."

"Who will believe that, if we move fast toward pure and unlimited democracy in the next twenty years as we have moved in the last twenty, we can still have the manners, morals, customs and political institutions of a representative republic?"

"None; absolutely none."

PROBLEM FOR EDUCATORS

"Here, then, is a new situation; and here, with it, is a new duty—a duty that comes to us all and will not be denied, but comes with special force to those men, who, as leaders, guides, and followers, teachers, trustees and students, in high schools and colleges, and universities, make up the forces of American education and embody its cause before and among the American people."

"A change of government, a putting away of an old frame and a putting on of a new one, is a tremendous thing. There are sooner, or later wrenchings, and distresses beyond the power of historians to estimate. They view the field; they do not count the dead; nor measure the misery."

"A change of government! What sign is more portentous! And yet, it is the sign today of many millions of Americans. Moreover, it is a sign that many other millions of Americans are looking upon with complacency."

"Therefore education has the imperative duty today to prepare men either to fall in with this mighty change intelligently or to resist it intelligently—to let them know just what are these institutions which it is proposed to bring from other ages and peoples and substitute for the institutions that we now have; just what the process of fitting 100,000,000 human beings to a new frame of government means; and just what are the advantages of improving the institutions that a nation has, from generation to generation, rather than casting those institutions upon the rubbish heap and taking from the rubbish heap the institutions cast there by other nations a century or centuries ago."

"What Education Must Do

"In a word American education—American education, not French or English or German education—owes to itself and to the government which has been its shield and buckler for four generations, to defend it where truth shows it to be defensible, to help reserve it where truth shows it to be worthy of preservation, and, only when truth reveals that government as unendurable in its oppressions and incurable in its perverseness, to begin training supermen for that day when the fate of the nation will depend upon everybody's being an able lawmaker, jurist and statesman, than anybody is today."

Why does education owe this duty to itself?

"As a matter of self-preservation, of self-defense; for the protection of its present achievements, of its present materials, even of its present methods, instruments, customs, traditions, and its very followers themselves."

"To change the form of government—did you ever think what it means, what it has meant in history? To put away that pattern of organized society within which we have been fitted, from which our laws, customs, and even our morals have taken form, to which even family life has been shaped, according to which we have directed our lives, our labors, our material ambitions, our daily hopes, ever since we have been what we are! In the chaos of the change, whether it comes peaceably, or with bronze sandals and wide-flowing hair, what cause would suffer sooner or more keenly than the cause of education?

"If we judge by history, the cause of the church, perhaps, but next, immediately next, the cause of education."

"In the last epoch-making transition of a government to limitless democracy, how wild was the ruin in which education was plunged—its institutions closed, its teachers hunted its students dispersed, its methods and systems proscribed, its field desolated—and, then no sooner driven forth as an outcast than brought back as slave; forced to relinquish even the appearance of freedom, to teach the impossibilities of Rousseau and the catechisms of Murat and Robespierre; forced to abolish the lessons of man and history to teach the lesson of a fitful automaton and a diseased imagination; frustrated, perverted and corrupted, in the material subjected to it, by the incitement of children against their parents and of parents against their children, by the encouragement of parricide and infanticide, by the demoralization of the family as an aid, of the church as an auxiliary pressed to annihilate every moral intuition of the young and to substitute for it the exact opposite; in short pushed down into a wild, foul, unhuman condition where it remained helpless to accomplish any recent mission until rescued and reenslaved anew, under barely bearable condition, by the iron arm of a Bonaparte."

Repetition Sure to Come.

"But, I hear, 'that is an old instance. It will not be repeated.' Do not be deceived. It is of the very essence of limitless democracy to war on higher education. Higher education is unequal. Higher education marks intellectual inequality. Higher education does not make men intellectually equal, but makes those who are intellectually unequal more unequal still."

"Limitless democracy has tried to establish intellectual equality by cutting off the heads that rise above the average. But it has a more effective and humane way—namely, to keep the heads from rising in the first place."

"Do not be deceived by kindly professions! Is not the same fawning hand extended today to the church as to higher education. Yet the unlimited Social Democrat thirsts for the destruction of the church as ardently today as did the wildest conventionalist in 1793."

That Majority Rules Idea

"The idea is current that we, the people of this day and hour own this representative republic in fee simple that it our right to use and abuse it at will."

"How often we hear the statement that 'It is the right of the majority to say' whether we shall continue this government that we have or set up a government of another sort. That is, it is assumed that there exists a right, in this present living generation, if half the voters plus one, so elect, to exchange the present form of government for another—having inherited a representative republic from our fathers, to bequeath something entirely different to our children, as, for instance, a limited monarchy, or a limitless democracy."

"I remember reading in a great newspaper at the time of the last Roosevelt campaign some statements to the effect that it was the 'right of the American people even to make him king; they were sovereign; it was theirs to do as they pleased.'"

"There is no such right. There is no such right constitutional or moral man-made or God-made."

"The institutions which make our form of government are not owned in fee simple by the voters; the majority voters at any given time; they are not owned but held in trust. To day we are trustees."

Posterity Must Be Regarded

"If having received in trust from our fathers a representative republic we leave to our children an unlimited democracy, what would be our position?"

"It would be that of the trustee who exchanges a block of government bonds for an unexplored mines in Mexico."

"Of course such things can be done; by a majority of voters such a change can be brought to pass. But that is not a question of right; it is a question of might."

"The case is plain as the midday sun. The men of 1776 did not give lives and fortunes merely to avoid paying a few taxes for a few years. They did not give lives and fortunes to maintain some personal principle or some passing preference."

"They did what they did for a permanent cause, to found something, to perpetuate something. That something was and is this representative Republic."

"How preposterous is any other view! As if a frame of government, with a great nation of interweaving generations within it, were to die and be born again every few years! What a condition to imagine! Who, then, would have fought at Bunker Hill, Saratoga, Long Island and Yorktown? Who would have agonized at Valley Forge? Who would have defied the rebels' fate in Continental Congress?"

"Nobody—absolutely nobody. Passing Privilege Not Issue"

"Or who would have fought 30 years later, or sixty years later, or eighty later, if the treasure and the blood and suffering had given no assurance, no guarantee, for the future?"

"The men fought in the Civil war, within living memory, to preserve this representative republic, whole and strong, because they loved it—loved it, and not something else to come later—some democracy of Athenian or Parisian mold, some limited monarchy of English or German pattern."

Institution the Battle Stake

"They never fought, no one fought to preserve it for a few years, that it might be a good subject for barter and exchange? How base the thought! No, they fought as other Americans fought in every other American war, with the determination to keep the institutions of this country in the framework in which they had been handed down, to preserve this representative republic as a representative republic, and to transmit this trust intact to the next generation."

"We have this representative republic then, as a trust not as our property."

"Let us add: Not only was it intended to be a republic, but it was especially intended NOT to be what so many today are trying to make of it—an unlimited democracy."

"It was design, not accident that we had bequeathed to us a national House of Representatives and a national Senate, it was design not accident, that the members of these houses, were not 'clerks,' not 'messengers,' but representatives of the people and so on through our splendid government framework."

"It was design not accident, that the President had greater authority than the King of England in peace and a dictator's power in time of war; it was design not accident that the supreme court was enabled to sit aloof and apart from President and Congress, and in majestic independence, pass its judgment on the legislative acts of them all."

"There are few arguments put forth for unlimited democracy today that Washington, Hamilton Adams and were not put forth in the days of settled by them as we have received the settlement. They had lions to fight in those days and they fought them."

Justification Is Lacking

"The question is: 'Have we a justification, a possible, a tentative justification for calling down upon us fifteen or twenty hence, the penalties entailed should we change our government today? Is our substance being confiscated by the taxgatherer? Have courts ceased to dispense justice? Has our family life ceased to be respected? Has our government ceased to keep peace at home or protect us abroad?'"

"Not all. It is contended that some business enterprises are too rich; others too extensive some railroads issue too many stocks; that some of the courts are too slow and that some office holders are dishonest."

What the Problem Is

"Are such ailments at worst, sufficient to justify a change in a form of government?"

"That today is the epoch-making question. And to enable its followers and apostles to make answer intelligently is the trumpet call upon American education at this time."

"I anticipate the answer. Education knows no master but truth. That one field that one particular field, often traversed but seldom systematically worked, is the field of political history, political institutions, theory and political practice."

Instruction Is Lacking

"There are courses and classics in most institutions of higher education, but I do not recall any just now in which whatever else he may do, the young man in search of a liberal education is required systematically and successively from year to year to learn why this representative republic is what it is and why it is, wherein it differs from the republics an democracies of the old world, why one thing was taken and the other left in the building of its framework and what is the nature of the once rejected materials which the American people today are urged a century and a quarter ago, the materials out of which their frame of government was constructed a century and a quarter ago."

Want Vacation Time Extended.

As an inducement for its clerks to take their vacations in the winter instead of during the usual vacation season, the Imperial Bank of Germany is offering its clerks extra time off if they take their outings between September 15 and May 1. The bank finds it necessary to employ hundreds of extra clerks in the summer months to take the places of those who are on vacations, and believes that if the outings are spread over the whole year business will be less handicapped."

Daughters Met Saturday

The Daughters of the American Revolution held a most enjoyable meeting, on Saturday with the recording secretary, Mrs. Collins Dyart. She was assisted by her daughter, Miss Grace, Mrs. Harned and Mrs. Smith.

The meeting, as is the custom, was opened by singing the National hymn, and repeating the Lord's prayer.

Mrs. Lee Read sang an old song, composed by Joseph Warren of Bunker Hill fame, set to the music of the "British Grenadiers," and she gave as an encore, "Beside the Linden Tree."

The first paper on the program was written by William E. Barton, who was born near Sublette, and is now pastor of the Presbyterian church of Oak Park, entitled "The First Thanksgiving and Some in Later Years." As Miss Osborn was unable to be present the reading was by Miss Pankhurst. Mrs. Burnham gave a very amusing reading entitled "The Old Kitchen Clock." Then Mrs. Read favored again with a song, "It Isn't the Thing You've Done, But the Thing You've Left Undone."

The program closed with a most interesting account, by Mrs. S. S. Dodge of her trip to Quincy and the proceedings of the State conference, held at that place.

The Sunshine fund is kept up by a penny collection at the close of each meeting. This money is used for flowers, sent to members who may be ill.

The refreshments consisted of nut sandwiches, olives, doughnuts and coffee, reminding us we were near Thanksgiving.

The membership is increasing and it is hoped to reach the hundred mark before the winter is passed. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. L. D. Pitcher, Dec. 6th, 410 W. Second street.

For Mrs. Lyman.

Mrs. Chas. Leake entertained a few friends this afternoon for Mrs. Frances Badger Lyman of Boston.

At Knox Home.

Mrs. Ellen Edwards of New York returned Saturday from Des Moines, Iowa, and is a guest at the home of G. W. Knox.

Musical Hohenzollerns.

The announcement that Kaiser Wilhelm has composed a number of patriotic airs, which are to be sung by the troops at the German army maneuvers, is a reminder that the Prussian royal family has a special talent for the creative side of musical art. Prince Henry of Prussia has composed several marches which are very popular in the German army and navy, and last year the emperor presented to the Royal Academy of Music a splendidly bound volume of musical compositions by Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia. William II. is particularly proud of the stirring "Song of Aegir," of which he is both composer and librettist. The Kaiser's famous ancestor, Frederick the Great, was easily the most prolific of all royal composers, having over one hundred compositions to his credit.—Westminster Gazette.

New Material for Floors.

They are making the floors of big office buildings in Germany of a mixture of magnesite chloride, pulverized magnesite and sawdust, laid from two to four inches thick. Consul General Robert P. Skinner reports from Hamburg that such floors are waterproof, almost fireproof, crack free, warm under foot, elastic, sound proof and cheaper than pine flooring, tiling or stone.

Checking Chronometers.

While the sextant affords the navigator an accurate means of ascertaining his latitude, for longitude he must depend on the chronometer, which cannot be made to run with absolute accuracy, making it necessary to use several of these instruments for checking purposes. The Eiffel tower radio-telegraph station in Paris now dispatches diurnal time signals enabling all chronometers within range to be checked. This service has been in continuous operation since May 23, 1910. Day signals at 11, 11:02 and 11:04 a. m. and night signals at 12, 12:02 and 12:04 a. m. are sent out, each consisting of a warning signal of dashes and dots, ceasing two or three seconds before the actual time report, which is a single dot.

MILITANT IN CHICAGO

Mrs. Pankhurst Tells Why Women Want Ballot.

Declares That She Received Same Jail Sentence as Policeman Who Attacked Child.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Thirty-five hundred Chicagoans listened to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst tell her story about militant suffragettes in England.

For two hours Mrs. Pankhurst told all the whys and wherefores of the militancy of her English followers, summing it up as a necessity and the only way in which English women can win their rights from the English government.

The speaker hailed Chicago as the first great city to recognize the horrors of the social evil and to try to stamp it out. She said that vice conditions had in part necessitated the fighting methods of militant suffragettes. She voiced her right to come to the United States as an oppressed foreigner, seeking aid.

Mrs. Pankhurst confined the greater part of her remarks to a discussion of the social evil and asserted that its existence more than anything else demanded the enfranchisement of women.

Mrs. Pankhurst repeatedly said that human lives were never threatened by women militant "warriors."

"We have gone through the stages of persuasion and argument in England," said Mrs. Pankhurst. "The fight is not with the men of the country, for they are with us. It is against a handful of politicians who will not give us equal suffrage until they are compelled. We are going to compel them. Our women must either be killed or enfranchised. We are teaching the men of the world that women, like men, can revolt."

"The age of the great conspiracy of silence is ended. All at once medical men began telling us of this scourge of vice. Chicago led the way by publishing its vice report. Immediately vice commissions were organized throughout the world."

"Despite criticism an increasing number of women have come to battle against vice for the future of the race. The men, in the end, will thank us. It is impossible to calculate the blessed outcome."

MANY MINISTERS

EULOGIZE LINCOLN

HUNDREDS OF PASTORS PREACHED ON GREAT STATESMAN SUNDAY.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY ENTHUSIAST.

Meetings Boosting the Road Are Held in Many States—$10,000,000 Fund Increases.

Detroit, Nov. 3.—The immense activity from coast to coast for the Lincoln highway is shown by a bulletin to subscribers to the $10,000,000 fund, which has just been issued which says, in part:

Many hundreds of pastor preached on the life of Abraham Lincoln yesterday.

Vice President Carl G. Fisher has attended a number of meetings in Indiana, where enthusiasm for the Lincoln highway is keen.

H. S. Quine, assistant to the president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., whom there is no more interested enthusiast, recently addressed a big meeting at Joliet and met with a most encouraging reception. The citizens there have organized the Lincoln Highway Association Auxiliary No. 1. The designation of organizations along the route is now being urged. Vice President Pardington expects soon to visit that city and perfect the organization for the procurement of funds.

On Oct. 16 Mr. Pardington appeared before the Philadelphia Trade association and before leaving every member of that association had subscribed to the fund and pledged himself to the sale of certificates to his customers. An engineer of the highway department of the city agreed for the city to mark the route from the Camden ferry to the county line.

On Oct. 8, citizens of Nebraska along the Platte valley met in convention in Central City. The state has already been marked throughout its entire distance with our highway marker. The banks are also enthusiastic as the citizens for the Lincoln highway. Mr. Pardington spoke there and the following day at Lincoln, 300 business men meeting at luncheon and assuring their hearty co-operation. On the evening of the same day the members of the Commercial Club of Omaha met in large numbers. H. E. Frederickson, chief consul for the state, was present as was Mr. Hosford, secretary of the Good Roads committee, and one of the regents of the state university. Our markers are placed five to the block on the poles in Omaha.

Oct. 9 the citizens of Clinton, Ia., met at a noonday luncheon at their club headquarters, all of whom were for the Lincoln highway. W. F. Coan of the First National bank, Clinton, as chief consul, has almost completed his state organization.

Since the last bulletin prominent citizens and officials including governors and mayors between the Atlantic and the Pacific have written letters to the association and the press commending the Lincoln highway to the patriotic consideration of their citizens. The Board of Selectmen of Worcester, Mass., are agitating improved highways from Albany to Boston in order that the New England tributary may be improved, suitably marked and made worthy of a part in the great transcontinental system.

In Iowa, Mayor Lovejoy has had more than one public meeting, contributions being reported in the daily papers. In Denver Motor Field, an automobile publication, has started a popular list for selling contributors' certificates, reporting each sale in its columns.

Ex-Gov. Gillette of California, the father of the $18,000,000 bond issue for the improvement of California roads, has agreed to serve as honorary vice president on the Pacific coast and E. P. Brinegar, state consul, of San Francisco, urges the early visit of one of our officials in order that the organization may be perfected.

With all these activities going on across the country, and these reported are but a small number, it is little wonder that the Lincoln highway today is one of the most talked of popular movements now being fostered and in which the interest of the general public is most keen.

It is worth reading our classified ad page, also the too late to classify on page 2.

ILLINOIS NEWS NOTES

HARVESTER TRIAL ON

Government Suit at St. Paul to Dissolve Corporation.

Federal Attorneys Will Press the Trust Charge—Company Denies Illegal Acts.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 3.—The government's suit to dissolve the International Harvester company came up for hearing in the United States district court here before Circuit Judges Sanborn, Hook and Smith today.

In its petition, which was filed April 30, 1912, the government alleges the company was organized in 1902 as a trust in violation of the Sherman law; that its purchase of the plants, properties, and business of the McCormick, Deering, Plano, Warder, Bushnell & Glessner, and Milwaukee companies created in that company a monopoly of the business in binders, mowers, rakes and binder twine in the United States; and that in its business methods and practices the company has increased its prices, to the grave injury of the farmers, and had coerced dealers and eliminated competitors.

The company in its answer, filed August 5, 1912, admitted the purchase of the harvester properties, but denied that the company was organized for any unlawful purpose or that such purchase gave it a monopoly in the harvester trade, or that it had increased prices, or that its business methods and practices had injured the farmers or the dealers or its competitors, but, on the contrary, its answer stated that its organization and business had been a benefit to the farmers in improved machines and services and in the low prices of the machines.

Warning Sent to Marshals

McReynolds Tells Deputies to Appoint Capable Aids.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Attorney General McReynolds directed United States marshals to be cautious in interpreting the recent action of congress in removing deputy marshals from the protection of the civil service.

"Under no conditions," said Mr. McReynolds in a circular letter to all marshals, "must marshals attempt to use these appointments merely for personal reward or partisan ends."

Approval by the department will be necessary before permanent appointments to deputy marshals are made.

Meteor Almost Kills Two

White Hot Mass Singes Eyebrows of Young Man.

Boston, Nov. 3.—A meteor dropped into Craddock Park, Malden, nearly striking two young men. The men say the meteor passed within two feet of them. Both were thrown down and overcome by the fumes emitted from the white hot mass. One of the men had his eyebrows nearly singed off.

The meteor buried itself in the soft earth of the park. So great was the force of the meteor that it went ten feet into the ground.

100 Hurt in Stand Fall

Rooters at Depauw Football Game Hurlled to Ground.

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 3.—One hundred persons or more, most of them women, were hurt, eight seriously, when the bleachers on Depauw university athletic field collapsed just before the Depauw-Rose Polytechnic football game. It was estimated that more than 700 men and women were on the bleachers when they collapsed.

Members of both football squads did good work in disentangling the twisted mass of lumber to free the persons who were caught in the ruins. The game was not played.

The swaying of the crowd in cheering the Depauw team as it came on the field is believed to have been the immediate cause of the collapse.

Blast Kills an Aged Man.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—William Gunger, seventy years old, 2941 Grace street, Chicago, was instantly killed by the explosion of a small boiler in his mushroom plant in Proviso, Ill. Pieces of the wrecked boiler were scattered over the ground as far as a hundred feet distant.

Ball Player Needed an Osteopath.
Rival teams were playing baseball in Leavenworth. In the height of the struggle one man made a dumb play at second base. A few minutes later his side came to bat and he stepped to the plate for his turn. He was hit by a pitched ball and knocked senseless. His teammates dashed water on him, stood him up, and laid him down again, the crowd offering all kinds of advice meanwhile. Finally the captain asked for a doctor. One of the rival team started away, and then paused to ask: "Say, you want an osteopath, don't you?" "No, why?" "Well, he got hit on the head, didn't he?"

MANY ELECTIONS ON TUESDAY

Voters of Several States and Cities to Decide Interesting Political Contests.

HOT BATTLE IN NEW YORK

Both Democrats and Progressives Are Confident of Victory in Indianapolis—Three Arrested at Pittsburgh for Fraud.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Elections of state and municipal officers will be held in a number of states next Tuesday.

Three governors are to be chosen—in Massachusetts, New Jersey and Virginia—and in more than a score of the larger cities mayors are to be elected. In all of these it is certain the votes cast by Republicans and Progressives will be closely watched and analyzed.

Bay State Fight "Crazy."

Boston, Nov. 2.—Politics went crazy this fall in Massachusetts, and this campaign just closing has been the queerest on record.

With the vote split as it is, the chances still favor the election of Walsh, with Gardner a good second. Bird a bad third and Foss a worse fourth.

Virginia Democrats Sure.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—The Socialist and the Socialist-Labor parties, which have but a very small number of voters in Virginia, will be the only opposition that the state Democratic ticket will have in the election.

Elect Maryland Senator.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 3.—Next Tuesday Maryland will elect a United States senator, state comptroller, clerk to the court of appeals and members of the general assembly.

Cincinnati Fight Bitter.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—After the most bitter municipal campaign in many years election day approaches with the fate of both candidates hanging in the balance. On one side are marshaled the Democratic voters, under the leadership of the young mayor, Henry T. Hunt, who two years ago won a signal victory over the old Cox organization candidate, Dr. Louis Schwab. The Republicans are aligned behind the standard of Judge Frederick S. Spiegel, an avowed and acknowledged member of the Cox organization, to which he is indebted for many years of office-holding.

Fielder Leads in Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 3.—With three state tickets in the field, the result of the coming election in New Jersey is in doubt, but the Democrats appear to be in the lead. Although the Progressive ticket is expected to split the Republican vote, the Democrats have been worried over the outlook. Apparently Fielder should have an easy victory.

Indianapolis Race Close.

Indianapolis, Nov. 3.—One of the bitterest political fights in the history of Indianapolis will be decided next Tuesday in the city election. It appears to be a close race to the finish, with both Democrats and Progressives confident of the outcome.

Joseph E. Bell, Tom Taggart's machine choice, is on the Democratic ticket for mayor, former Mayor Charles A. Bookwalter is running on the Republican ballot and Dr. William H. Johnson is backed by the Progressives.

Doctor Johnson has made a wonderful campaign and is regarded as the only possibility to beat Bell. The trend of straw votes shows a close race as between Bell and Johnson.

Arrest Three in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 3.—Dr. E. R. Walters, delinquent tax collector of Allegheny county, Howard B. Ousler, head of the department of supplies of Pittsburgh, and Harry McKelby, a policeman, were arrested charged with conspiracy in connection with alleged registration frauds.

Many See Tammany's Defeat.

New York, Nov. 3.—Sunday brought a calm in the political storm, and the city campaign is practically ended. Both sides claim victory by 150,000, but Tammany has its back to the wall.

The tiger is fighting for its life and faces the probability of four more lean and hungry years. Charles F. Murphy has been predicting a turn in the political tide, but others cannot discover it. At his chief meeting last night Edward E. McCall, Tammany nominee for mayor, was heckled by hostile listeners and his audience began to fade away at the start.

Gunmen Threaten Sulzer.

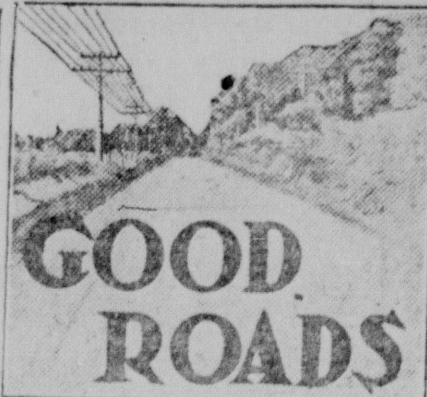

With the opposition in control of one branch of the legislature, there will be a curb on Governor Glynn and other Democratic state officials. It is generally conceded William Sulzer will be elected to the assembly and he may be counted on to make the road of his successor as rough and rocky as possible.

Railroads Place Steel Orders.

New York, Nov. 3.—Railroads placed orders for equipment last week calling for more than 120,000 tons of rolled steel, including 60,000 tons of rails, 4,250 cars, 19 locomotives, and 3,270 tons of bridge work.

Fears Militants; Closes Home.

London, Nov. 3.—Owing to threatened suffragette outrages the duke of Rutland has decided to close Had den hall, in Derbyshire, one of the most historical of English mansions.

GOOD ROADS

UNITED STATES LAGS Way Behind in Matter of Improved Highways.

Of 2,200,000 Miles in This Country Less Than 200,000 Are Up to Date—$250,000,000 Is the Annual Loss to People.

What is the use of rural free delivery mail routes and the parcel post system if there is to be no improvement of the public roads for the economic delivery of parcels and mails? According to a bulletin issued by the office of public roads, there were in the United States in 1909 2,199,645 miles of public roads, and the total mileage of improved public roads was only 190,476. Yet we boast that the United States is a highly civilized country and make faces at the effects of the most decadent of which, as we are accustomed to call them, the people know where they are going when they start, and have some idea of when they will get there and what it will cost them to make the journey. There is a good deal of humbug in the claims we make for ourselves, particularly when it comes to practical things, although we are willing to admit without argument that we are the most practical people in the world.

Recently what is called the second National Good Roads Federal Aid convention was in session in Washington. The place of meeting could not have been better selected; the time could not have been more inauspicious. Nobody was thinking about good roads, except the nearest cut to the White House and the offices waiting for distribution. It was announced in the official program of the meet, which was called by the American Automobile association, that "the distinct purpose of this gathering is to create a concrete plan which shall logically involve our national government in the highways progress of the country." That is a fine purpose; but with the old ones going out in shoals and the new ones coming in without any special purpose or any purpose that has been formulated clearly, this was hardly the time for the association to make a very deep impression upon the legislative and disposing mind.

For two days the convention discussed good roads in a most intelligent way and a mass of valuable information was obtained from expert testimony, foreign and domestic, that would lose much of its force if it should be suffered to "perish with the using" or the speaking. The main contention of the association is that "it is the duty of the federal government to supplement state and county systems with a plan of national roads connecting all parts of the country. That is a most ambitious project, but none too ambitious for a country so big as this. There are something like 3,000 counties in the United States and it is well within the mark to say that in not one-half of these counties is there anything like what could be called by the utmost stretch of courtesy a road "system." The official figures prove this without argument.

The ratio of good roads to bad roads is as 190,000 is to 2,000,000, and, as Mr. Dooley would say, "there ye are." But it is as certain as taxes that good roads are coming. The idea is taking hold of the public imagination and will soon make its way into the public pocketbook. It costs from five to ten cents, according to the classification, to haul a ton of freight by the much abused railroads a hundred miles or so; it costs about twenty-five cents a mile to haul a ton of almost any sort of freight over most of the public highways in this country, and these highways are in the daily use of the people in their most intimate and necessary business. It has been estimated that bad roads cost the people of the United States not less than $250,000,000 a year.

Cost of Transportation.

It costs the American farmer 25 cents a ton per mile on an average to haul his produce to market or to the railroad station. In England, France and Germany hauling costs from 7.7 to 13 cents per ton mile. The difference is due mainly to the improved roads in Europe.

Keep People in Country.

Good roads will keep people in the country and will bring city people to the fresh air.

To Town by Telephone.

Did you ever hear this? The roads were so bad that the only way he could get to town was by telephone.

Increase Morality.

Good roads will increase health, happiness, education, religion and morality.

Decrease Profanity.

Good roads will decrease profanity, discouragement, back taxes, sheriff's sales, sour grapes and grouches.

HEAD STUFFED? GOT A COLD? TRY PAPE'S

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends colds and grippe in a few hours.

Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until you have taken three doses, then all gripe misery goes and your cold will be broken. It promptly opens your clogged up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nasty discharges or nose running; relieves headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffing. Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

Motor Slaughter.

Roughly speaking, motor vehicles are killing in the streets of London today about twice as many persons as were killed by the horse vehicles. That is a hard fact which is not to be disposed of by the motorist's claim that he has far more control over his carriage than a horse driver ever had. He has more control, we believe, but that only makes it plain that the control is not exercised.—Westminster Gazette.

Good Roads in Texas.

The citizens of Montgomery county, Texas, recently voted bonds to the amount of $250,000 to be used in constructing good roads in this county. Work will begin at the earliest possible date.

No Encouragement.

In considering roads remember that there are few towns that look so good to the farmer that he will kill his horse to get there.

LEARNED A LESSON

By H. M. EGBERT.

"If you want a quiet place to go and write your novel this summer, you'd better let me send you to my bungalow on Otter lake," said Mrs. Temple. "There are a number of cottages on the east shore, but only one on the west, and that's mine, so you can write to your heart's content and nobody will interfere with you. But I'm sorry you won't be here when my niece May comes home from California," she continued, with a twinkle in her eyes.

Mrs. Temple was an old friend of Richard Dwight's family, an eccentric, middle-aged woman, with a shrewd mind, a sharp tongue and a kind heart. Richard, whose first book, "The Rapids," had placed him beyond the need of finding employment, had not seen her in several years, her unannounced visits having always coincided with his own absence.

"Most young men would rather meet a pretty girl than go off into the woods alone," she continued, "but you authors are a class apart, I suppose." A week later Richard was installed in Mrs. Temple's bungalow. It was luxuriously furnished, and the rental was only just enough to free him from the sense of obligation. He planned to spend a pleasant summer there with his work.

Otter lake was a winding body of water, and the presence of numerous small islands made it difficult for a newcomer to find his way about it. Richard spent his first afternoon inspecting his shores in his boat.

At the head of the lake he beached his boat and flung himself down on the grass for a long meditation as to the fate of his heroine. So engrossed did he become that he awakened to realities by discovering that the sun had gone down a long time ago. In fact, it was almost too dark to locate his boat.

He did locate it at last, but before he had reached the large island which was his landmark it was almost pitch dark. With much difficulty and many wrong turns, at last he reached the shore and saw the cottage loom up in the darkness.

It was still darker inside, and as he stretched out his hand to find the lamp he struck it against a piece of furniture which he did not remember having left in that position beside the door. He felt his fingers close upon a watch. But his own watch was in his pocket. He felt for a match hastily, struck it—and suddenly perceived a young lady dressed in a Japanese kimono who stood in the other doorway, looking at him.

He had blundered into the wrong cottage.

The match flared out as the wind rushed in. Too embarrassed to speak, Richard turned for the door and hurried out into the darkness. As he did so he heard the girl scream, and a moment later lights began to flicker in the adjacent cottages.

He stumbled down toward the lake. But again fate was against him. He could not find his boat.

There was nothing to do but to make for home. Happily he now had a fair sense of his location, and, more happily still, he knew that, once he was beyond the farthest cottage, the country round the lake was open. There was a broad trail, in fact, which led almost to his own door. He had just reached the confines of the trees when he heard shouts behind him.

It takes a man of more than ordinary courage to explain himself under such conditions. Dick ran as fast as he could go without unduly betraying his whereabouts. As he ran he heard his pursuers following him.

"He's in those trees," he heard one yell to another.

"Got your pistol, Bill?"

"Sure! I'm not taking any chances with the man that robbed Mills' place last week!"

"What did he do?"

"Broke into Mills'—The voices died away and Richard redoubled his pace.

It was a long distance, and when at last he reached his cottage he was exhausted from his wild plunge through the undergrowth, while his coat was badly torn by briars. He threw off his clothes and tumbled into bed, to fall into an uneasy slumber for an hour or two. When he awoke the sun was just rising above the trees.

Dwight put on his clothes and was amazed to see how torn they were.

Black marks from tree branches spangled his coat, almost like the bars on a convict's tunic. He walked down to the water's edge and stood there, wondering how he could explain to the girl without admitting that he was her nocturnal visitor.

His problem was to be solved very quickly, for at that moment a boat containing three men and the girl in question shot from under the trees and pushed into the bank. The men sprang out, leaving the girl to hold the boat to the shore.

"Who are you, what are you doing here, and where do you live?" demanded one of the men.

"My name is Dwight, I am taking a stroll, and I live in Mrs. Temple's cottage over there," answered Richard. "You're up early, Mr. Dwight, aren't you?" inquired the other.

"Yes. I like to get up early," said Dwight.

"Been having a walk through the woods, perhaps?" the man continued, glancing at Dwight's coat. "Well, I'll be frank with you. This cottage was closed yesterday morning, because I came past here and saw it. There have been several robberies round here of late, and last night a lady's cottage was broken into and a gold watch taken. With or without your permission we are going to look for it." He turned to a friend. "Bill, you keep him here while I go through the cottage," he said. "Then perhaps, if we don't find what we want, he will consent to be searched. Don't let him get away."

The men departed on their mission, leaving Dwight a prisoner. He shrugged his shoulders and thrust his hands into his pockets. Then his nonchalance utterly disappeared, for his hand closed upon—the little watch and chain. He must have put them there in his confusion.

"I do hope you'll find my watch," said the girl, who had tied the boat to a tree and now came up. "It was a present from my grandfather, and I'd give anything to get it back."

"We'll do our best," answered Richard's captor.

The girl looked rather curiously at Richard. Then she drew the man a little way aside and whispered something. He shook his head; the girl persisted, placing her hands pleadingly upon his arms. Finally the man rather sulkily assented, and the girl came toward Richard.

"If you give me back my watch and chain you can go," she said.

Richard saw only one way out. He drew the lost articles from his pocket and put them in her hand.

"I didn't steal them, and it was a mistake," he said. "It was my first day here; I took the wrong side of the lake because the island confused me, and when I saw you I was so startled that I put them in my pocket. I don't suppose you'll believe me, but I can refer you to Mrs. Temple as to my character."

The party was coming back from the cottage.

"Nothing there," they called. They looked at Richard, and seemed to hesitate about repeating their request to search him. The cottage was certainly occupied by some one, and as certainly the occupant was not there. Perhaps this young man might have spoken the truth. But they looked at the coat stains and moved toward him.

"It's all right," said the girl, cheerfully. "I've found it."

"You've found it, Miss Cameron?"

"It was very stupid of me. I put my watch in my chatelaine and—here it is." And she opened the bag and showed the article in question, which, in fact, she had just transferred there.

The men looked at each other, and the man who had spoken with Miss Cameron looked at Richard. He suspected something, he did not know quite what, but—well, there was nothing more to be done.

"We must apologize," said one of them, rather glumly. "Since the watch and chain are found of course there is nothing more."

They went down to the boat, and, just as the girl was about to embark, she left them and came running back to Richard.

"I want to tell you I believe you, Mr. Dwight," she said. "And I hope you've learned a lesson."

"I certainly have," said Richard. "Next time I take a wrong turn in the dark—"

"Oh, I don't mean that sort of a lesson," answered the girl, and Richard saw that her eyes were twinkling, just as Mrs. Temple's had. "I mean, not to go off into the woods when you have the chance of staying at home and meeting—meeting—meeting me!"

"You are Mrs. Temple's niece!" exclaimed Richard in astonishment. "What a fool I was not to remember your name! Why—"

Why, Mrs. Temple must have sent him there without telling him that the pretty niece was at Otter lake also! Wasn't that just like her? "I happened to have your photograph which auntie sent me," she continued. "That's how I knew you were. And now that you have found the way to my cottage—"

"I may come again?"

"During visiting hours," she said, laughing.

"Miss Cameron!" called her friends. "Have you lost anything?"

"No, I've found it now," she called back, and departed with a smile which made Richard realize that he had lost something, at any rate.

Would he find it again? He determined to try with all his might, even though it involved many visits to the other side of Otter lake, and though the novel suffered in consequence.

And, when the summer ended, he had found it again. At least, so said the announcement in the newspapers.

ROAD PUTS SAFETY FIRST

Grand Trunk Enlists Employees and Officials to Check Accidents.

The question of "safety first" is being taken up exhaustively by the railroads. Howard G. Kelley, vice president of the Grand Trunk, has just issued an official circular showing the earnest, thorough and determined manner in which that system is endeavoring to prevent personal injuries to patrons and employees. This circular is the result of a close study of the personal injury problem by George Bradshaw, an expert safety engineer who was engaged some time ago to study conditions and inaugurate the "Safety First Movement."

Safety committees composed of the local officers and one or more employees from each branch of the service are organized on each operating division and in the principal shops and terminals, there being about 500 members of such committees. These local committees are directed to meet at least once a month, employees being allowed their necessary expenses and compensation for any time taken from their regular duties on account of committee work. The purposes of the safety organization as stated by Mr. Kelley are:

1. The correction of unsafe conditions and practices before an injury has resulted.

2. The investigation of accidents which may occur with a view to discovering the causes thereof and applying corrective measures, where possible, to prevent a recurrence.

"It will be the duty," he adds, "of members of safety committees as they go about their regular work to note unsafe conditions and practices and to correct or take up the same for correction. Most railroad accidents are caused, not by collisions, derailments and wrecks, but by little conditions and practices of an unsafe nature which can to a great extent be overcome by thinking about prevention before instead of after an accident has happened."

A general safety committee is created at Montreal, composed of the vice president of the operating department, chairman, the vice president of the land, tax and claims department, the chief engineer, the engineer of the maintenance of way, the superintendent of motive power, the superintendent of the car department, the general superintendents, the chief claims agent, and the safety engineer who fills the post of secretary. This committee will consider all matters referred to it by the local committees.

Prince Roland Bonaparte.

Prince Roland Bonaparte, undoubtedly the most interesting living representative of the family of Emperor Napoleon I, has great claims to distinction as a man of science, and is always been a munificent patron of scientific research. He recently celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday. Prince Roland is noted as a traveler. He is a giant in stature, but is extremely modest. Prince Roland is a Membre de l'Institut, and he is president of the French Geographical and other societies. His library contains over 200,000 volumes, and his botanical collection numbers over 2,000,000 plants from all parts of the world. Perhaps his best known work is "Les Habitants de Suriname."

Vaccinated Cop Faints.

Vaccinators of the department of health "scratched" 118 probationary "cops" the other day, and one of them—more than six feet tall and built like a Hercules—fainted when it came his turn, crumpling in a heap at the sight of the abrasion of his skin. Many babies in their mothers' arms submitted to the ordeal with just a whimper. It is not unusual for grown-ups to display more agitation than children when being vaccinated at the department offices, but there has been only one other occasion when a policeman fainted. That was two years ago, and he was also a big man. —Baltimore American.

Women Are Fine Riders.

At the Devon horse show in Philadelphia recently the women riders out-classed the men. They were not professional women riders either, but society girls. They rode like veterans, and mounted on their dashing steeds presented a pretty sight. It was expected that some of the many women competing would drop out, but such was not the case and none were disqualified.

Home Gambling.

A man may gamble at home with impunity, according to the unanimous ruling of the appellate division of the New York supreme court. He may engage in any game of chance, and money may change hands, but it must be at home. The case which evoked the court's decision grew out of the arrest of a man who was caught in the act, with four others. In the police court he was held for the grand jury on the charge of being a common gambler. The county court sustained the charge, and the defendant's attorney carried the case to the appellate division. If the defendant had been caught gambling away from home his offense would have been a crime. The identical act committed within his own four walls is not a crime, for a man's home is his "castle," even if it is only a flat. Presumably the four other persons present at the game also lived at the same place, otherwise they would have been offenders against the law.—Boston Globe.

OF LOCAL INTEREST

SOME PEOPLE WE KNOW, AND WE WILL PROFIT BY HEARING ABOUT THEM

This is purely a local event. It took place in Dixon. Not in some faraway place. You are asked to investigate it. Asked to believe a citizen's word. To confirm a citizen's statement. Any article that is endorsed at Home is more worthy of confidence than one you know nothing about. Endorsed by unknown people.

Julius Gottlieb, merchant, 418 W. First St., Dixon, Ill., says: "My back had been causing me trouble. Often it was so lame and sore that it was hard to bend over. The kidney action was irregular and I knew that my kidneys were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros. Co's Drug store. They did such good work that I recommended them. I am glad to do so again."

Georgia Peafowl 52 Years Old.
Hiram Dixon has a peafowl 52 years old. She is a curiosity to behold and people of the county delight in watching her majestically strut along as if she were yet sweet 16. The old bird has shed numbers of times, but the most recent is perhaps as beautiful as when she was in her prime. She now has as a latest addition a very beautiful colored fan, and her breast is coal black, while the balance of her plumage is a grayish white. Before mounting she was snow white, and her unexpected transformation is a source of manifest interest to her "acquaintances" and owners. Her age is vouchered for by the best people of the county. She is shown every attention and is cared for as if she were one of the family, and her existence is a source of great pride to the family.—Swainsboro correspondence Augusta Chronicle.

Englishman Returns a Relic.
The duke of Sutherland, who has just arrived in New York, seems to be a "good sport." He was on the Olympic when it was tied up by a strike, and offered to stoke on the passage. He has bought much land in Canada and is urging his friends to go there and be real farmers. But the primary purpose of this long journey, as he proudly announced, is to deliver to the New York Yacht Club the sternpiece of the original yacht America, which won the famous cup in 1851. On this sternpiece there is an eagle, with wings spread, and the name of the yacht. The old cup winner was remodeled in England and the sternpiece was placed over the door of a hotel in Ryde, Isle of Wight. Pretty good for the largest titled land owner in Great Britain.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

One of the Pioneers.
Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, who died recently in Portland, Ore., was one of the pioneer settlers of that state, going there in 1852. Portland at that time was a mere hamlet, the whole northwest being a single territory that reached to the British boundary. She was identified with much of the life of the country in its early history, her father having been an Indian commissioner.

In one of his speech-making tours Attorney General Wickersham had to stop in a small western city, and in the course of his stay, was standing on the street corner talking to a lawyer. There walked past the couple a man who wore the bandages and bruises which indicate the activity of the human fist. "My!" exclaimed Wickersham. "That fellow's been beaten up." "Yes," said the lawyer, without concern. "He's the editor of a scandalous paper that's printed here. He writes stuff about prominent men and women." "Who beat him up?" asked Wickersham, greatly interested. "Oh, I don't know," replied the other. "His paper comes out every Tuesday evening, and he looks that way every Wednesday morning."—Popular Magazine.
